B COURT OF APPEAL, PUTRAJAYA
RAMLY ALI JCA

[CIVIL APPEAL NO: W-02-1281-2009]
C 8 MAY 2012

D LABOUR LAW: Employment - Constructive dismissal - Breach of employment agreement - Appellant to hold office as director until next annual general meeting - Whether appellant can enter into service agreement with respondent after he ceased being a director - Legal capacity of parties to enter contract - Whether appellant a de jure director duly appointed in accordance with respondent's Articles of Association - Whether Industrial Court invoked s. 30(5) Industrial Relations Act 1967 in favour of appellant

E CONTRACT: Employment contract - Breach - Constructive dismissal - Whether a valid contract of employment of service existed between parties - Legal capacity of parties to enter contract - Whether established - Whether contract enforceable - Whether respondent breached contract

F EQUITY: Unclean hands - Unconscionable conduct - Claim for constructive dismissal - Whether appellant came to court with clean hands - Whether appellant flouted provisions of Companies Act 1965 and respondent's Articles of Association - Whether appellant could resort to equity and good conscience - Industrial Relations Act, s. 30(5)

G The appellant was appointed as a director on 3 June 1998 to fill a casual vacancy in the respondent company. Article 109 of the respondent's Articles of Association provided that the appellant would hold office only until the date when the next Annual
H General Meeting ('AGM') would be held. After the 1997 AGM, no AGM was held within a year or even within 15 months' from the said AGM. Pursuant to s. 143 of the Companies Act 1965, the respondent's application for an extension of time to hold its AGM was granted until 31 December 1998. However, no AGM
I was held until 15 June 2001, ie, after the appointment of the Special Administrators (appointed by Pengurusan Danaharta Nasional Berhad) to administer the respondent. That aside, on 31 March 2000, the appellant and the respondent entered into a Service Agreement whereby the appellant was appointed as executive chairman cum managing director for a period of three years' from 1 February 2000. The said agreement was signed by one Chong Kee Ling ('Chong') who was also a director of the respondent at that time. On 18 January 2002, the appellant was informed by the Special Administrators that he had ceased to hold office as a director of the respondent upon the expiry of the last day for holding the AGM, ie, 31 December 1998. Having considered himself constructively dismissed, the appellant filed a claim in the Industrial Court whereby the main contention was that the respondent had breached the fundamental terms and conditions of his employment contract by not paying his claims and salaries from October 2000 until January 2002. In light of this, the appellant applied for reinstatement of his position as executive chairman cum managing director under s. 20 of the Industrial Relations Act 1967 ('the Act'). The said claim was dismissed on the grounds that (i) the appellant was not a workman under s. 2 of the Act; and (ii) the appellant did not have the capacity to enter into the Service Agreement since he was not a director at the material time. This decision was however affirmed by the High Court. Dissatisfied with the said decisions, the appellant appealed to this court. The issues that arose for consideration, inter alia, were (i) whether there was a valid contract of employment or service between the parties; and (ii) whether the appellant was qualified to be appointed to the post of executive chairman cum managing director.

Held (dismissing appeal with costs)

Per Ramly Ali JCA delivering the judgment of the court:

- (1) The relief under s. 20(1) of the Act is made available to a "workman". Therefore, the first and foremost consideration in invoking s. 20 is that the claimant who makes the representation thereunder must be a workman as defined under s. 2 of the Act. The essential element that must exist between the workman and the employer is a contract of employment and that contract must be for the workman to work for hire or reward with the employer. Being statutorily defined, a contract of employment in s. 2 of the Act refers not

- A just to any contract but to a valid and legal contract where the parties are legally qualified and have the capacity to enter into it. (paras 14 & 21)
- B (2) The holding of the AGM was governed by s. 143 of the Companies Act 1965 as well as art. 60(1) of the respondent's Articles of Association, the effect of which was clear and unambiguous. The appellant would hold office of his directorship only until the respondent's next AGM which was to be held in accordance with the Articles of Association within such period as extended by the Registrar under s. 143 of the Companies Act 1965. Being a director appointed to fill a casual vacancy, the appellant therefore ceased to be a director on or after 31 December 1998. The appellant and all the other directors of the respondent during the period from 31 December 1998 to 15 June 2001 were not de jure directors and were not duly appointed in accordance with the Articles of Association. (paras 30, 32 & 35)
- C
- E (3) The Articles of Association recognizes de jure directors appointed either to fill in a casual vacancy or appointed by the shareholders during general meeting but does not recognise a de facto director who was not duly appointed in accordance with the Articles. The appellant may be a de facto director occupying the position of a director but not a de jure director duly appointed under the respondent's Articles of Association.
- F Further, the appellant's de facto directorship did not entitle him to be appointed as a managing director under the Articles of Association. That being the case, by virtue of arts. 92 and 93, the appellant had no capacity to be appointed as executive chairman cum managing director and thus, had no valid legal capacity to enter into the Service Agreement. (para 39)
- G
- H (4) Being a de facto director himself, Chong was deemed to have vacated the office at the same material time and ceased to be a director duly appointed pursuant to the Articles of Association. Hence, at the time of signing the Service Agreement on behalf of the respondent, Chong had no legal capacity to do so which rendered the said agreement invalid and unenforceable. (para 41)

I

- (5) The evidence and background of the appellant's conduct clearly supported the Industrial Court's finding in not invoking s. 30(5) of the Act in favour of the appellant. The appellant could not be said to come to the aid of the court with clean hands after having flouted the provisions of the Companies Act 1965 and the respondent's Articles of Association and thus, could not resort to equity and good conscience under s. 30(5) of the Act to assist him. (paras 51 & 52)

Bahasa Malaysia Translation Of Headnotes

Perayu telah dilantik sebagai pengarah pada 3 Jun 1998 untuk memenuhi kekosongan di syarikat responden. Perkara 109 Perkara-Perkara Persatuan responden menyatakan bahawa perayu akan memegang jawatan tersebut hanya sehingga mesyuarat agung tahunan ('AGM') berikutnya yang akan diadakan. Selepas AGM 1997, tiada AGM yang telah diadakan dalam jangkamasa setahun atau pun 15 bulan dari AGM tersebut. Berdasarkan s. 143 Akta Syarikat 1965, permohonan responden untuk pelanjutan masa bagi mengadakan AGM telah dibenarkan sehingga 31 Disember 1998. Walaubagaimanapun, tiada AGM diadakan sehingga tahun 15 Jun 2001, iaitu, selepas pelantikan Pentadbir Khas (dilantik oleh Pengurusan Danaharta Nasional Berhad) untuk mentadbir responden. Sebaliknya, pada 31 Mac 2000, perayu dan responden telah memasuki suatu Perjanjian Perkhidmatan di mana perayu telah dilantik sebagai pengerusi eksekutif dan pengarah pengurusan bagi tempoh tiga tahun dari 1 Februari 2000. Perjanjian tersebut telah ditandatangani oleh satu Chong Kee Ling ('Chong') yang juga merupakan pengarah responden pada masa itu. Pada 18 Januari 2002, perayu dimaklumkan oleh Pentadbir Khas bahawa beliau telah dihentikan memegang jawatan sebagai pengarah responden apabila luputnya hari terakhir untuk mengadakan AGM, iaitu, 31 Disember 1998. Menganggap dirinya dibuang kerja secara konstruktif, perayu memfailkan tuntutan di Mahkamah Perusahaan di mana asas penghujahannya adalah bahawa responden telah memungkirkan terma dan syarat penting dalam kontrak pekerjaan dengan tidak membayar tuntutan dan gajinya dari Oktober 2000 sehingga Januari 2002. Berdasarkan perkara ini, perayu telah memohon untuk perlantikan semula pangkatnya sebagai pengerusi eksekutif dan pengurus pengarah di bawah s. 20 Akta Perhubungan Perusahaan 1967 ('Akta'). Tuntutan tersebut ditolak atas alasan bahawa: (i) perayu bukanlah seorang pekerja di bawah

- A s. 2 Akta; dan (ii) perayu tidak mempunyai keupayaan untuk memasuki Perjanjian Perkhidmatan memandangkan beliau bukanlah seorang pengarah pada masa material itu. Keputusan ini telah disahkan oleh Mahkamah Tinggi. Tidak puas hati dengan keputusan tersebut, perayu telah merayu ke mahkamah ini. Isu-isu
- B yang dibangkitkan untuk pertimbangan adalah, antara lain: (i) sama ada terdapat suatu kontrak pekerjaan atau perkhidmatan sah di antara pihak-pihak; dan (ii) sama ada perayu layak untuk dilantik bagi pangkat pengerusi eksekutif dan pengarah pengurusan.

C Diputuskan (menolak rayuan dengan kos)
Oleh Ramly Ali HMR menyampaikan penghakiman mahkamah:

- D (1) Relif di bawah s. 20(1) Akta disediakan untuk seorang “pekerja”. Oleh itu, pertimbangan pertama yang perlu dibuat dalam membangkitkan s. 20 adalah bahawa pemohon yang membuat representasi di bawahnya sepatutnya seorang pekerja seperti ditakrifkan di bawah s. 2 Akta. Unsur asas yang mesti wujud di antara pekerja buruh dan majikan adalah kontrak pekerjaan dan kontrak tersebut mestilah di mana pekerja
- E bekerja dengan majikan untuk upah atau ganjaran. Mengikut takrifan statutori, kontrak pekerjaan di bawah s. 2 Akta merujuk bukan sahaja kepada sebarang kontrak malah kepada suatu kontrak sah di mana pihak-pihak layak di bawah undang-undang dan mempunyai keupayaan untuk memasukinya.
- F (2) Pemegangan AGM dikawal oleh s. 143 Akta Syarikat 1965 dan juga per. 60(1) Perkara-Perkara Persatuan responden, kesannya di mana adalah jelas dan nyata. Perayu akan memegang jawatan pengarahnya hanya sehingga AGM berikut yang sepatutnya diadakan berdasarkan Perkara-Perkara Persatuan dalam tempoh tertentu seperti dilanjutkan oleh Pendaftar di bawah s. 143 Akta Syarikat 1965. Selaku pengarah yang dilantik untuk memenuhi kekosongan, perayu telah berhenti menjadi pengarah pada atau selepas
- G 31 Disember 1998. Perayu dan semua pengarah responden yang lain bukanlah Pengarah de jure dalam tempoh dari 31 Disember 1998 sehingga 15 Jun 2001 dan tidak dilantik berdasarkan Perkara-Perkara Persatuan responden.

I

- (3) Perkara-Perkara Persatuan mengiktiraf pengarah de jure yang dilantik sama ada untuk memenuhi kekosongan ataupun dilantik oleh pemegang saham semasa mesyuarat agung tetapi tidak mengenali pengarah de facto yang tidak dilantik mengikut Perkara-Perkara Persatuan. Perayu mungkin seorang pengarah de facto menjawat kedudukan seorang pengarah tetapi bukan pengarah de jure yang dilantik di bawah Perkara-Perkara Persatuan responden. Lagipun, pangkat perayu sebagai de facto pengarah tidak melayaknya untuk dilantik sebagai pengarah urusan di bawah Perkara-Perkara Persatuan. Dengan itu, di bawah per. 92 dan per. 93, perayu tidak mempunyai keupayaan untuk dilantik sebagai pengerusi eksekutif dan pengarah urusan dan oleh itu, beliau tidak mempunyai keupayaan di bawah undang-undang untuk memasuki Perjanjian Perkhidmatan. A
- (4) Selaku pengarah de facto, Chong dianggap telah mengosongkan jawatannya pada masa material dan berhenti menjadi pengarah yang dilantik di bawah Perkara-Perkara Persatuan. Oleh itu, pada masa menandatangani Perjanjian Perkhidmatan bagi pihak responden, Chong tidak mempunyai keupayaan di bawah undang-undang untuk membuat sedemikian yang membuatkan perjanjian tersebut tidak sah dan terbatal. D
- (5) Keterangan dan latar belakang kelakuan perayu jelas menyokong pendapat Mahkamah Perusahaan tidak membangkitkan s. 30(5) Akta bagi berpihak kepada perayu. Perayu tidak boleh dikatakan telah datang ke mahkamah dengan tangan yang bersih selepas melanggar peruntukan Akta Syarikat 1965 dan Perkara-Perkara Persatuan responden dan oleh itu, tidak boleh bergantung kepada ekuiti dan suara hati baik di bawah s. 30(5) Akta untuk membantu beliau. JUDGMENT

E Ramly Ali JCA:

Introduction

- F [1] The appellant's claim at the Industrial Court is that he considered himself constructively dismissed by the respondent as at 18 January 2002 and that the respondent had breached the fundamental terms and conditions of his employment contract by not paying his claims and salaries from October 2000 until January 2002. The appellant applied for reinstatement under s. 20 of the
- G Industrial Relations Act 1967 (the IRA) of his position with the respondent as Executive Chairman cum Managing Director.
- H [2] The respondent on the other hand disputed the appellant's claim and contended the appellant was never a "workman" in the first place as the alleged service agreement between the appellant and the respondent was null and void and thus unenforceable.
- I [3] The Industrial Court had on 26 July 2004 dismissed the appellant's application on the ground that the appellant was not a "workman" under s. 2 of the IRA. The appellant then applied for an order of certiorari under O. 53 of the Rules of the High Court 1980 (the RHC) to quash the said Industrial Court order.

The said application was also dismissed by the High Court on 12 June 2011. Dissatisfied with the decision of the learned High Court judge, the appellant filed an appeal to the Court of Appeal.

Factual Background

[4] The appellant was appointed as a director of the respondent on 3 June 1998 to fill a casual vacancy. Article 109 of the Articles of Association of the respondent provides that the appellant would hold office only until the date when the next Annual General Meeting (AGM) of the respondent would be held. After the 1997 AGM, it is not in dispute that no AGM was held within a year or even within 15 months from the 1997 AGM. The respondent applied for an extension of time to hold its AGM under s. 143 of the Companies Act 1965. It was granted until 31 December 1998. It was also not in dispute that no AGM was held until that date (31 December 1998), not even until 2001 when Special Administrators had been appointed by Pengurusan Danaharta Nasional Berhad to administer the respondent company. The AGM was finally held after the appointment of the Special Administrator.

[5] The appellant was first appointed as a director of the respondent on 3 June 1998, to fill a casual vacancy. Under a service agreement entered into by the appellant and the respondent on 31 March 2000 (the service agreement) the appellant was appointed as Executive Chairman cum Managing Director for a period of three years from 1 February 2000. The said service agreement was signed on behalf of the respondent by one Chong Kee Ling, who was also a director of the respondent at that time.

[6] Under the service agreement, the appellant was entitled to a gross salary of RM20,000 per month, a housing allowance of RM5,000 per month, a driver and a company car together with all expenses in connection with the said car and driver. In addition he was entitled to be reimbursed for general expenses and dental and specialist consultation for himself and his immediate family up to RM100,000 per year; one overseas leave passage and three domestic leave packages covering air fare, hotel accommodation, food and other related travelling expenses; the entrance fees and monthly expenses of the clubs in which the appellant was a member, and all travelling expenses, hotels, entertainment and out of pocket expenses incurred by him in the discharge of his duties.

- A [7] On 16 June 2000, the Special Administrators were appointed by Pengurusan Danaharta Nasional Berhad to manage the affairs of the respondent. The appellant continued to receive his salaries until September 2000 but not after that. Various letters were written by himself and by his solicitors to the Special
- B Administrators on the matter. The appellant was later informed by the Special Administrators that the Special Administrators “were looking into the matter and will revert to him soonest possible, and in the meantime the Special Administrators shall withhold all payments to him until the matter is resolved”.
- C [8] The appellant also claimed that he received a letter from the Special Administrators dated 18 January 2002 stating that they had been advised and were of the view that the appellant had ceased to hold office as a director of the respondent upon the
- D expiry of the last day for holding the AGM for 1998, ie, 31 December 1998 (as extended). The appellant found the letter “very disrespectful and humiliating”. He then informed the Special Administrators that he considered himself constructively dismissed by the respondent as at 18 January 2002 because the respondent
- E had breached the fundamental terms and conditions of his employment contract (as per the service agreement dated 31 March 2000) by not paying his claims and salary from October 2000 to 18 January 2002.
- F [9] The respondent on the other hand contended that the appellant, as a director appointed by the board on 3 June 1998 to fill a casual vacancy, could only hold office until the next following AGM of the respondent. The last AGM before the appointment of the Special Administrators was held on 26 June
- G 1997. The next AGM of the respondent was convened and held on 15 June 2001. As such the appellant could only hold office until 31 December 1998 at the latest (the extended period to hold AGM). The respondent contended that since the appellant had ceased to be a director on 31 December 1998, he was therefore not a director and could not have been appointed Executive
- H Chairman cum Managing Director when the service agreement was entered into on 31 March 2000. The appellant lacked the capacity to be appointed as a Managing Director of the respondent and the service agreement signed by him was null and void and thus unenforceable.
- I

[10] The matter was referred to the Industrial Court on 20 November 2002 under s. 20(3) of the IRA 1967. At the Industrial Court the learned chairman, took the approach by addressing first a critical issue of whether the appellant was a “workman” under s. 2 of the IRA prior to determining whether the appellant has established that he was indeed constructively dismissed.

[11] The learned chairman agreed with the submission of the respondent that the appellant and the other directors of the respondent during the period from 31 December 1998 to 15 June 2001 (when the AGM was finally convened and held after the appointment of the Special Administrators) were not de jure directors. The Industrial Court found that since the appellant had ceased to be a director of the respondent on 31 December 1998, he was therefore not qualified to be appointed either as Executive Director or Managing Director nor could he be appointed as Executive Chairman cum Managing Director. The chairman also found that the appellant did not have the capacity to enter into the service agreement as he was not a director at the material time. Accordingly the appellant’s claim at the Industrial Court was dismissed.

[12] The learned High Court judge found that the Industrial Court has not erred in law and in excess of jurisdiction warranting interference of the High Court. Her Ladyship affirmed the decision of the learned chairman of the Industrial Court and accordingly dismissed the appellant’s application for judicial review. Hence, the present appeal before us.

F

Decision Of This Court

[13] The appellant made representations under s. 20(1) of the IRA claiming that he had been constructively dismissed without just cause or excuse. The minister referred those representations to the Industrial Court under s. 20(3) of the same Act. Section 20(1) of the Act provides:

G

- (1) Where a workman, irrespective of whether he is a member of a trade union of workmen or otherwise, considers that he has been dismissed without just cause or excuse by his employer he may make representation in writing to the Director General to be reinstated in his former employment; the representations may be filed at the office of the Director General nearest to the place of employment from which the workman was dismissed.

I

A [14] Clearly, the relief under s. 20(1) is made available to a “workman”. Non-workman is not eligible to be granted such a relief. Therefore the first and foremost consideration in invoking
s. 20 to be satisfied is that the claimant who makes the representation thereunder, must be a “workman” as defined under B s. 2 of the same Act. The learned chairman of the Industrial Court was correct in her approach to determine the status of the appellant as a “workman” first before proceeding to determine whether the appellant, as the claimant there, has established a case for constructive dismissal.

C [15] The respondent had taken the stand that the Industrial Court has no jurisdiction to entertain the appellant’s claim under
s. 20 of the Act on the ground that the appellant was not a “workman” at the relevant time. This is an issue of jurisdiction of D the Industrial Court. In other words the respondent was saying that the Industrial Court has no jurisdiction over the matter as the appellant was not a “workman”.

E [16] The above approach is not something strange in law. It is in line with the dicta of Gopal Sri Ram JCA (as he then was) in the case of Kathiravelu Ganesan & Anor v. Kojasa Holdings Bhd [1997] 3 CLJ 777 cited by the learned chairman where the Supreme Court, inter alia, opined that “where the challenge (to the threshold jurisdiction of the Industrial Court) is not thus taken, F the Industrial Court must be permitted to decide the dispute to conclusion and in the process to deal with the jurisdictional question, eg, whether the particular workman is a workman ...”.

G [17] There are other reported cases where an employer raises the issue of jurisdiction of the Industrial Court to entertain a claimant’s claim on the ground that the claimant is not a “workman”. Examples of such cases are: Assunta Hospital v. Dr A Dutt [1979] 1 LNS 6; Inchcape (M) Holdings Bhd v. RB Gray &
Anor [1985] 2 CLJ 305; [1985] CLJ (Rep) 132 and Hoh Kiang
Ngan v. Mahkamah Perusahaan Malaysia & Anor [1996] 4 CLJ 687.

H [18] The decision of Mohd Azmi J in the case of Assunta Hospital (supra) on this issue can be a good guidance. In that case, the learned judge ruled:

I

Once endowed with jurisdiction, it is for the Industrial Court to decide, inter alia, whether Dr Dutt is a 'workman' within the meaning of s. 20(1). If he is a workman, the court must decide whether he has been dismissed without just cause or reason. If the court decides he has been dismissed without just cause or reason, the court will proceed to make an 'award', which under s. 2 is not confined merely to reinstatement but is wide enough to cover the power to make other orders in respect of the matter referred to it.

[19] As clearly stated by Mohd Azmi J in that case, "it is for the Industrial Court to decide whether Dr Dutt (the claimant) is a "workman". If he is a "workman" the court must decide, whether he has been dismissed without just cause or reason. Likewise, we should add that if he is not a "workman" the matter ends there and the claim must be dismissed.

[20] The word "workman" is defined under s. 2 of the IRA. It means "any person, including an apprentice, employed by an employer under a contract of employment to work for hire or reward and for the purposes of any proceedings in relation to a trade dispute includes any such person who has been dismissed, discharged or retrenched in connection with or as a consequence of that dispute or whose dismissal, discharge or retrenchment has led to that dispute."

[21] From the above definition, the essential element that must exist between the workman and the employer is a "contract of employment" and that "contract of employment" must be for the workman "to work for hire or reward" with the employer. Being statutorily defined, a "contract of employment" in s. 2 refers not just to any contract but to a valid and legal contract where the parties to the contract are legally qualified and have the capacity to enter into the contract. This is in line with the basic requirement for a creation of a valid contract or agreement under the law.

[22] The existence of a "contract of employment" is also essential in establishing constructive dismissal, which is the basis of the appellant's claim in the present case before us. In Western Excavating (ECC) Ltd v. Sharp [1978] 1 All ER 713, Lord Denning MR held that "if the employer is guilty of conduct which is a significant breach going to the root of the contract of

A employment, or which shows that the employer no longer intends to be bound by one or more of the essential terms of the contract, then the employee is entitled to treat himself as discharged from any further performance; if he does so, then he terminates the contract by reason of the employer's conduct."

B [23] Salleh Abas LP in the Supreme Court case of Wong Chee Hong v. Cathay Organisation (Malaysia) Sdn Bhd [1988] 1 CLJ 45; [1988] 1 CLJ (Rep) 298 had also referred to a "contract of employment" when His Lordship dealt with the question of "dismissal":

C We think that the word "dismissal" in this section should be interpreted with reference to the common law principle. Thus it would be dismissal if an employer is guilty of a breach which goes to the root of the contract or if he has evinced an intention no longer to be bound by it. In such situations, the employee is entitled to regard the contract was terminated and himself as being dismissed.

D [24] The appellant, as the claimant, has based his claim on the service agreement allegedly entered into between him and the respondent on 31 March 2000 under which he claimed to be appointed as Executive Chairman cum Managing Director of the respondent for a term of three years with effect from 1 February 2000. The appellant considered himself dismissed by the company (respondent) as at 18 January 2002 because the company (respondent) had breached the fundamental terms and conditions of his employment contract by not paying his claims and salaries from October 2000 until January 2002. As can be observed the appellant was making his claim based on the strength of the employment contract dated 31 March 2000 and alleged breach of the said employment contract by the respondent.

G [25] It is a trite principle of contract law that in entering into a valid contract the parties thereto must have the necessary capacity to do so. A contract cannot be legally valid and therefore unenforceable if both or one of the parties are or is incompetent or have or has no capacity to enter into the said contract.

H [26] Therefore, it is critical here to determine if there was a valid contract of employment or service between the appellant and the respondent. For that purpose the court should also determine whether the appellant was in law and in fact a director validly appointed in accordance with the Articles of Association of the respondent.

I

[27] In short, the appellant (as the claimant) before establishing whether or not he has been “constructively dismissed” must prove: A

- (a) that at the time of the alleged dismissal he was a “workman” as defined under s. 2 of the IRA, ie, there has been a valid contract of employment between him and the respondent subsisting at that time; B
- (b) that the respondent by its conduct has breached a term or terms and conditions of the said contract of employment or has evinced an intention no longer to be bound by it; C
- (c) the breach must be a fundamental breach going to the root of the foundation of the said contract of employment;
- (d) the appellant must have left the job in response to the said breach and not for some other unconnected reasons; and D
- (e) he must not delay too long in terminating the contract in response to the breach, otherwise he may be deemed to have waived the breach.

[28] The respondent’s submissions in opposing the appellant’s claim are as follows: E

- (a) the respondent did not have an AGM for a continuous period of four years, that is, between 26 June 1997 until 15 June 2001; F
- (b) the appellant was appointed as a director to fill a casual vacancy on 3 June 1998 and pursuant to art. 109 of the Articles of Association of the respondent, the appellant ceased to be a director on the next AGM which was 31 December 1998 (the last day of the extended period); G
- (c) pursuant to art. 93 of the Articles of Association of the respondent only a validly appointed director can be appointed as a Managing Director; and H
- (d) since the applicant was appointed as a Managing Director (Executive Chairman cum Managing Director) on 31 March 2000 after he ceased to be a director on 31 December 1998, the service agreement between the applicant and the respondent is therefore void and unenforceable. I

A [29] It is not in dispute that the appellant was appointed as a director of the respondent on 3 June 1998 to fill a casual vacancy after one of the directors resigned. The appointment was done under art. 109 of the Articles of Association of the respondent which reads as follows:

B 109. The Directors shall have power at any time to appoint any person to be a Director either to fill a casual vacancy or as an addition to the existing Directors, but so that the total number of Directors shall not at any time exceed the maximum number fixed by or in accordance with these Articles. Any Director so appointed shall hold office only until the next following Annual General Meeting and shall then be eligible for re-election but shall not be taken into account in determining the retirement of Directors by rotation at such meeting.

D [30] The holding of the AGM of a company is governed by s. 143 of the Companies Act 1965 as well as art. 60(1) of the Articles of Association of the respondent. For convenience, the provisions of s. 143(1) and (2) are appended below:

E (1) A general meeting of every company to be called the "annual general meeting" shall in addition to any other meetings to be held once in every calendar year and not more than fifteen months after the holdings of the last preceding annual general meeting but so long as a company holds its first annual meeting within eighteen months of its incorporation, it need not hold in the year of its incorporation or in the following year.

F (2) Notwithstanding subsection (1) the Registrar on the application of the company may if for any special reason he think fit so to do, extend the period of fifteen months or eighteen months referred to in that subsection, notwithstanding that such period is so extended beyond the calendar year.

G [31] Article 60(1) of the respondent's Articles of Association provides:

H 60.(1) The Company shall, in each year, hold a General Meeting as its Annual General Meeting, in addition to any other meetings in that year. Not more than fifteen months shall elapse between the date of one Annual General Meeting and that of the next.

I

[32] The effect of arts. 60(1), 109 and s. 143 of the Companies Act is clear and unambiguous, ie, the appellant would hold office of his directorship only until the next AGM of the respondent which was to be held in accordance with the Articles of Association within such period as extended by the registrar under s. 143 of the Companies Act 1965. In re Consolidated Nickel Mines, Limited [1914] 1 Ch 883, it was emphasized by Sargant J that:

A director on his appointment does not ordinarily step into an office which is perpetual unless terminated by some act, but into an office the holding of which is limited by the terms of the articles.

[33] In that case, the court held that the holding of the office of director was only to last until the end of 1906, which was the last day on which a general meeting for that year could have been held. The above decision was adopted and followed in other cases such as Club Flotilla (Pacific Palms) Ltd v. Isherwood & Ors [1987-1988] 12 ACLR 387; Morris v. Kanssen [1946] AC 459 (House of Lords); and Re Zinotty Properties Ltd [1984] 3 All ER 754 (Chancery Division).

[34] Notwithstanding art. 60(1), there was no AGM held within a year or even within 15 months after the 1997 AGM. This is not in dispute. On applications by the respondent, extension of time was granted twice, first to 31 October 1998 and subsequently to 31 December 1998. It is also not in dispute that no AGM was held even until 31 December 1998. It was only in 2001 that the respondent convened its next AGM (after the 1997 AGM), after the Special Administrators were appointed.

[35] That being the case, we are of the same opinion with the learned chairman of the Industrial Court as well as the learned High Court judge that being a director appointed to fill a casual vacancy, the appellant therefore ceased to be a director on or after 31 December 1998. The appellant and all the other directors of the respondent during the period from 31 December 1998 to 15 June 2001 (when the next AGM was finally held after the appointment of the Special Administrators), were not de jure directors of the respondent. They were not duly appointed in accordance with the Articles of Association of the respondent company.

A [36] Under the service agreement dated 31 March 2000, which was the basis of the appellant's contract of employment in his present claim, the appellant was appointed as Executive Chairman cum Managing Director for a period of three years from 1 February 2000. The question now is whether the appellant, who
B had by law, ceased to be a director of the respondent on 31 December 1998, was qualified to be appointed to the post of Executive Chairman cum Managing Director in accordance with the Articles of Association of the respondent company.

C [37] Articles 92 and 93 of the respondent's Articles of Association are relevant to the above question. Both the articles are here reproduced in full for easy reference:

D 92(i) The Directors shall from time to time, appoint one (1) or more Directors to be Executive and/or Managing Directors for such period and upon such terms as they may think fit at any one time but if the appointment is for a fixed term, the term shall not exceed three (3) years; with power to appoint thereafter and may from time to time (subject to the provisions of any contract between the Executive and/or Managing Director and the E Company) remove or dismiss him or them from office and appoint another or others in his or their place or places. The Executive Director and/or Managing Director shall be subject to the control of the Board of Directors.

F 92(ii) An Executive and/or Managing Director shall, subject to the terms of any agreement entered into in any particular case, receive such remuneration (whether by way of salary, commission, or participation in profits, or partly in one way and partly in another) as the Directors may determine.

G 93. An Executive Director and/or Managing Director shall while he continues to hold that office be subject to retirement by rotation and he shall be taken into account in determining the rotation of retirement of Directors and be subject to the same provisions as to resignation and
H removal as the other Directors of the Company. The Executive Director and/or Managing Director, if he ceases to hold the office of director, shall ipso facto and immediately cease to be Executive Director and/or
I Managing Director, as the case may be.

[38] Again, arts. 92 and 93 are clear and unambiguous, ie, the Executive and/or Managing Director can only be appointed from among the directors of the company and the executive and/or Managing Director shall ipso facto and immediately cease to be Executive and/or Managing Director if he ceases to hold the office of a director.

[39] The relevant Articles of Association of the respondent recognize only a director duly appointed under the articles. In this context the articles recognize de jure directors appointed either to fill in a casual vacancy under art. 109 or appointed by the shareholders during general meeting. The articles do not recognize a de facto director who is not duly appointed in accordance with the articles. Being appointed to fill in a casual vacancy under art. 109, the appellant shall hold office of the directorship only until the next following AGM, nothing more. His eligibility is only for 're-election' as a director at the next AGM. If he is not so 're-elected' at the AGM or if there is no AGM held within the stipulated period (and the period has lapsed), then he ceases to be a director. He may be a de facto director, "occupying" the position of a director, but not a de jure director duly appointed under the Articles of Association of the company. He never "holds" an office of a director for the company. His de facto directorship did not entitle him to be appointed a Managing Director of the respondent company under the Articles of Association. That being the case, by virtue of arts. 92 and 93, he has no capacity to be appointed Executive Chairman cum Managing Director of the company; and consequently he has no valid legal capacity to enter into the service agreement dated 31 March 2000.

F

[40] Consequently, we are of the view that the said service agreement is invalid, void and unenforceable. Therefore, the said service agreement cannot be relied upon by the appellant in support of his claim in the present case.

G

[41] It is also noted that the person who purportedly signed the said service agreement dated 31 March 2000 on behalf of the respondent company, ie, Mr. Chong Kee Ling – was also de facto director who was deemed to have vacated the office on the same material time. He ceased to be a director duly appointed pursuant to the Articles of Association of the respondent. At the time of

I

A signing the said agreement on behalf of the respondent, the said Mr Chong Kee Ling had no legal capacity to do so. Therefore, this is another ground to hold that the said service agreement is invalid and unenforceable.

B [42] Another ground spelled by the appellant in the present appeal is that the learned chairman of the Industrial Court has failed to consider the decision of the Kuala Lumpur High Court under Petition No. D7-26-24-2000 dated 28 November 2000 involving the same parties and the same subject matter and thus
C has breached the principle of stare decisis. The appellant contended that the Industrial Court did not address its mind to the fact that the said High Court Petition against the appellant's directorship and his appointment as Executive Chairman cum Managing Director of the respondent had been dismissed by the Kuala Lumpur High Court.

[43] In that petition, one of the minority shareholders of the respondent (by the name: Ceraf Kualiti Sdn Bhd - as the petitioner) filed for a petition for minority oppression pursuant to s. 181 of the Companies Act 1965 against the respondent and
E various directors (including the appellant) seeking several reliefs, amongst others, a declaration that the appellant (3rd respondent in that petition) ceased to be a de jure or valid director of the respondent company; and a declaration that the appointment of the appellant as Managing Director of the respondent company on F 1 February 2000 was invalid, unlawful null and void.

[44] In that petition, the appellant (3rd respondent therein) maintained that he was at all material times a valid director of the respondent company and the service agreement dated 31 March
G 2000 was valid and enforceable.

[45] At the material time when the said petition was filed in the High Court the respondent company was placed under the Special Administration pursuant to the Pengurusan Danaharta Nasional Berhad Act 1998. Section 41(1)(e) of the said Act provides that
H on the appointment of the Special Administrator a moratorium shall take effect during which "no proceedings and no execution or other legal process may be commenced or continued with and no distress may be levied against the affected person or its assets
I except with the prior written consent of the Corporation".

[46] It is not in dispute that no consent was obtained from the corporation (Pengurusan Danaharta) and also no application for consent has been made to the said corporation. On that ground the learned High Court judge in that petition, Justice TS Nathan proceeded to dismiss the said petition on 28 November 2000 and ordered that the parties to bear their own costs.

[47] From the reading of the notes of proceedings in that petition, we are in agreement with the learned High Court judge (in the present case) that the said petition was actually dismissed by the court because written consent of the corporation (Pengurusan Danaharta) as required under s. 41(1)(e) of the Pengurusan Danaharta Act was not procured by the petitioner in that petition; and not because it was dismissed after hearing the merits. The learned chairman of the Industrial Court was correct in not accepting the contention by the appellant that the petition was heard on merits and that the learned chairman has erred on account of breaching the principle of stare decisis.

[48] On the above consideration, we are of the view that this ground of the appeal is without merit and must fail.

E

[49] The appellant also complained that the learned chairman of the Industrial Court went against the spirit of s. 30(5) of the IRA and erred on ground of illegality when she failed to take into account of the said section.

F

[50] Under s. 30(5), “the court shall act according to equity, good conscience and the substantial merits of the case without regard to technicalities and legal form”. The learned chairman in her grounds of judgment has indicated that:

G

In coming to this decision the court has borne in mind the provisions of section 30(5) of the Industrial Relations Act 1967 to act according to equity, good conscience and the substantial merits of the case.

[51] Contrary to what the appellant has said we are satisfied that the learned chairman did consider s. 30(5) of the IRA. The evidence and the background of the appellant’s conduct in the present case clearly support the learned chairman’s finding in not invoking s. 30(5) in favour of the appellant. As submitted by the respondent (and accepted by the learned chairman and the learned High Court judge), the appellant as a director of the respondent (before he ceased to be one) had no regard for:

H

I

- A (a) section 143 of the Companies Act 1965 and art. 60 of the Articles of Association to call for an AGM of the respondent on the due date, 31 December 1998;
- B (b) Article 109 of the Articles of Association of the respondent in that the appellant continued as a director despite the expiry of his tenure; and
- C (c) Article 92 of the Articles of Association of the respondent in that after he ceased to be a director pursuant to art. 109, he had the audacity to appoint himself as Managing Director of the respondent with another director, by the named Chong Kee Ling who signed on behalf of the company though he was only a de facto director but not a de jure director.

- D [52] Thus in this context, we agree with the learned chairman of the Industrial Court as well as the learned High Court judge that the appellant could not be said to come to the aid of the court with clean hands after having flouted the provisions of the Companies Act 1965 and the Articles of Association of the respondent company. The appellant clearly cannot now resort to
- E “equity and good conscience” under s. 30(5) of the IRA to assist him.

Conclusion

- F [53] We find no element of illegality, impartiality or procedural impropriety by the learned chairman of the Industrial Court in dealing with the proceedings before her and ultimately in coming to her decision. She has taken into consideration all the relevant factors. She has not taken into consideration any irrelevant
- G matters. We also find that the learned High Court judge had correctly affirmed the decision of the learned chairman of the Industrial Court. We agree with the findings of the learned chairman that the appellant had ceased to be a director of the respondent company on 31 December 1998, and therefore was not qualified to be appointed as Executive Chairman cum
- H Managing Director under the Articles of Association of the company. The service agreement dated 31 March 2000 was invalid as the appellant had no capacity as a director to enter into such a contract at the relevant time.

I

[54] We find that the appeal before us is without merit and must fail. We therefore dismiss the appeal with costs of RM10,000 to the respondent. We also make an order that the deposit be paid to the respondent towards account of costs.
